Marcus Løvdal Band is an innovative and creative young blues band that adds new energy and new impetus to Norwegian blues, and gives hope that this genre will soon become a new export from the Norwegian music industry.

An energetic and honest debut album from Marcus Løvdal Band

Marcus Løvdal band won the Union Blues Cup in 2013 at Notodden Bluesfestival, and became the «Union band 2014». In the wake of this, the band has traveled across Norway to meet their listeners and audience at the many different blues clubs around the country and other music scenes. Now they are ready to release their debut album.

International Blues Challenge

In January 2015 - with a large portion of energy and flow after very positive feedback around the country - the band went to the IBC (International Blues Challenge) in Memphis to represent Norway. Having achieved a very strong position in the competition, the band came home with new contact from around the world and more dates both home in Norway and abroad.

Energy and enthusiasm

The songs had been ready for a long time before they were recorded. The only thing lacking was to record them and find the right producer. Some songs have been finished in rehearsal, others have been worked on over time. The band feels that the songs and the album clearly shows who they are as a band. Although genre is not something they take into account, they have their feet firmly planted in blues. With producer Leif Johansen, they have managed to capture the energy and the joy that Marcus Løvdal band shows when they play live. That makes this album an energetic and honest debut album.

The band

Marcus Løvdal band started in Kristiansand on the music conservatory just before Christmas in 2012, when Marcus took the initiative and were joined by Audun Barsten Johnsen, Jonatan Eikum and Lasse Kulsrud Nordby. Not long after they vocalist and guitarist Bjørn Ulvik Blix Lein joined the band. Marcus Løvdal band write their own material and play some cover songs. They went right to the top in the Blues Cup Challenge at Notodden Bluesfestival 2013, in competition with bands from all over Norway.
